

Use our "Clothing inventory template" to keep track of all the clothing inventory you have (whether it's your family's clothing inventory or you're selling or renting clothes, you'll be comfortable using the template anyway).

The table is effortless to use and has several fields to fill out:

- "Vendor code" - in this column, it is necessary to indicate the product code, if possible (for example, the manufacturer's article);
- "Brand" - in this column, you must specify the brand or manufacturer of the unit of goods;
- "Type" - in this column, it is necessary to select the appropriate value for the type of clothing from a large list of proposed options in the drop-down list;

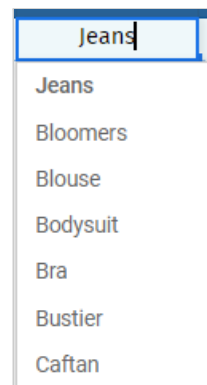

- "Style" - in this column, it is necessary to select the appropriate value of the style of this item of clothing from the drop-down list;

- "Man | Woman | Baby" - in this column, similarly, you need to select from the drop-down list the value for whom this piece of clothing is intended;

- "Description" - in this column, provide a detailed description of the clothing, such as fashion or other unique characteristics;

- "Color" - in this column, indicate the color of each piece of clothing;

- Next comes the block with clothing sizes. In the columns "XXS" - "One-size," you should indicate the number of units for each size that you have in stock. In the "Qty on hand" column, the number of units of goods is summed up automatically;

Qty on hand	XXS	XS	S	M	L	XL	XXL	One-size

- "Cost price" - in this column, indicate the cost of acquiring a unit of goods;
- "Sale price" - in this column, indicate the cost of selling a unit of goods (if you are selling clothes);
- "Total sale price" - this column will automatically calculate the total cost for which you can sell the entire amount of goods that you have in stock.
